

CASTLE CONNOLLY TOP DOCTORS® SPOTLIGHT

PHOTOGRAPHY BY: INSPIRE AESTHETICS GROUP

At age 11, Dr. Keith Hanna witnessed the transformative power of plastic surgery after his cousin suffered severe facial trauma from a car accident. He began researching and learned that plastic surgery helps patients of all ages and types, from young children with cleft lips and palates to older individuals for skin cancers, cosmetic surgery and more. "I was hooked on the broad spectrum of skills required to become a plastic surgeon," he shares. "What I still love about it to this day is the wide variety of people and issues that I get to deal with on a daily basis."

The board-certified plastic surgeon at Marietta Plastic Surgery has built one of the premier practices in the Atlanta area by "giving our patients the ultimate in care and compassion, having an amazing staff, and being on the cutting edge of advances and technology in plastic surgery," he explains. Although most of Dr. Hanna's practice is cosmetic surgery, he does perform the majority of breast reconstruction procedures for breast cancer patients in the practice. He is also the only physician on his team with training in oculoplastic surgery, making him "comfortable with any surgery around the eyelids, no matter how complex," he shares. Looking ahead, Dr. Hanna reveals that the practice plans to expand its services to include hair transplantation, an exciting addition to his career.

For the Clemson University alum, his dedication to his profession doesn't end there. Dr. Hanna served as president of the Georgia Society of Plastic Surgeons as well as on multiple committees for the American Society of Plastic Surgeons and is passionate about donating his time and services to help underprivileged children through Childspring International.
